

ABSTRACT

A communication system includes a server terminal that distributes a service program held in its possession to other prescribed terminals without the need of a server, wherein the service program possessed by the server terminal is downloaded
5 from a server or a storage medium such as a memory card or the like, or is stored in advance in the server terminal.